TRYING TO LOCATE HIS GRAVE.

D. A. R. Wish to Mark Resting Place of Nicholas Tuttle.

Macon, Mo., Feb. 15.—In response to a request of Miss Mary L. Dalton, State historian of the Missouri Daughters of the Revolution, an effort is being made to locate the grave of Nicholas Tuttle, the last cate the grave of Nicholas Tuttle, the last revolutionary soldier buried in this county. Several of Mr. Tuttle's descendants are still living, and some of them remember the occasion of the funeral in 1850. There was a platoon of soldiers present, some veterans of the Mexican War and two or three of the Revolutionary War. They had their old flintlock rifles with them, and as the dead soldier's body was lowered they gave the military salute to his memory. Mr. Tuttle was 22 years old.

A wooden fence was erected around the burial lot, and for many years the grave was attended. But as the children moved away and new residents came in the little plot of ground was neglected and the fence knocked down. Finally, a German farmer acquired the property and began tilling the soil. Some of Tuttle's descendants went to him and offered to purchase the ground where the veteran was buried, but the farmer refused to sell it at any price. He took the fence down and planted corn over the soldier's grave.

For years there has been nothing to mark soldier's grave.

For years there has been nothing to mark the spot, but Marion Tuttle, Constable of Callao Township, a grandson of Nicholas Tuttle, thinks he can locate the grave, and will try to do so as soon as the frost gets out of the ground. He attended the funeral in 1850, and remembers a certain oak tree that stood on the edge of the field.

Among others to whom Miss Dalton refers and whose graves are better located, are Bennett Tilley, rged 59 years, buried in Liberty Township; Henry Lynch, 89, Goshen Township; James Fletcher, 83, buried in the Fletcher family lot in the south part of the county.

CARBOLIC ACID STING DISSUADES A SUICIDE

One Swallow of Fiery Liquid Makes P. C. O'Neill Abandon Idea of Self-Slaughter.

MOUTH BURNED BY POISON.

Substituting Water for the Fluid Later, He Drank It to Frighten Members of His Family.

If carbolic acid wasn't such a nasty, burnng fluid Peter C. O'Neill of No. 304 Theresa avenue would, in all probability, be a corpse to-day. The reason advanced by O'Neill for his failure to shuffle off the mortal coil yesterday, according to his original intention is the same in substance as that given by the inebriate who jumped into the river in winter, who said the water was too cold to drown in with comfort. O'Neill says that when he took the first swallow of the carbolic acid the fiery liquid burned his tongue and throat so badly that he immediately renounced all thought of suicide.

O'Neill had been drinking for several days, and yesterday afternoon remorae selzed him and he procured a half-ounce bottle of carbolic acid with the determination of ending his life. In the presence of his wife and children he raised the bottle to his lips, bade them good-by and gulped down a mouthful of the poison. ACID BURNED HIS MOUTH.

ACID BURNED HIS MOUTH.

The fiery liquid burned his tongue and throat and gagged him so that only a small portion of it went down his throat. The pain was intense, and while his wife and children were screaming for help he ran out into the back yard and cooled his mouth with a couple of handfuls of snow and sleet. Then, remembering that his wife and children had seen him raise the deadly vial to his lips with the dramatic declaration that he was going to end his life, he decided that it was up to him to make the threat good, to all appearances, at least.

So he emptied the remainder of the deadly poison and filled the bottle with harmless water. Staggering back into the house, where his family were still shricking and arousing the neighborhood, he drained the bottle and fell to the floor just as a policeman arrived in answer to the general alarm sent out by the neighbors.

STOMACH GETS A BATH.

The prospect of the stomach pump at the dispensary brought O'Neill to his senses, and he protested that he had not taken any poison. The policeman, however, looked at O'Neill's seared tongue and without further ado carted him to the City Hospital. He was very sheepish when he reached the hospital and attempted to explain that it was all a joke. He was very sick of the joke after the attendants had washed out his stomach.

O'Neill' admitted to a Republic reporter after the attendants had washed out his stomach.

O'Neill admitted to a Republic reporter that he had taken a small amount of the carbolic acid with suicidal Intent.

"I had been drinking pretty heavily," he said, "for the first time in a iong while, and to-day I became so disgusted with myself that I thought the best thing I could do would be to end myself. The first mouthful of the acid burned me so badly that I changed my mind. I went outside, emptled the rest of the stuff and took a big drink of whisky. Then I thought I might as well make a bluff at carrying out my threat, as my family, had seen me take the first dose, so I filled the bottle with water, went back and swallowed it all. I'm sorry now that I made such a fool of myself."

O'Neill is 35 years old. The physicians say that he is in no danger, as the amount of acid he swallowed was only sufficient to cause a very sore tongue and throat.

The proceedings were devoted to outlining the work to be done. It is proposed to raise the funds necessary by subscriptions from within the order and without. The aid of the clergy will be solicited, as also that of others in favor of total abstinence.

The location of the statue has not been definitely decided upon. The most popular place mentioned is Forest Park. It has also been suggested that it be erected in Kenrick place, near Archbishop Kain's residence. It is bounded by Lindell boulevard, McPherson place and Vandeventer avenue.

M. P. Murray Wants to Recover Amount Awarded for Damages. REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Carlyle, Ill., Feb. 15.—M. P. Murray, assignee of James Sanders of Keyesport, has instituted proceedings in the Circuit Court against James N. McClaren and Mary B. Miller, his sister, to set aside a deed made by McClaren. It is alleged that it is a fraudulent conveyance.

This suit is the sequel to a shooting escapade which occurred several months ago in Keyesport. McClaren shot Sanders by emulating the example of the assassin of President McKlnley. He wrapped a hand-kerchlef around the hand in which he held the revolver. walked up to his intended victim and put a revolver in his abdomen, Sanders recovered, and sued his assailant for damages. The court awarded him $400. Meantime, McClaren transferred some land he owned to his sister, Mrs. Miller. The consideration named was $1.000. Excellent Example of Topographic

Work of Geological Survey.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL

Washington, Feb. 15.—The United States Geological Survey has now in press and will shortly issue a topographic map of the Suilivan quadrangle, a section not far from the city of St. Louis, including portions of Crawford, Franklin, Washington and Gasconade countles, Missouri.

The map is on a scale of about one-half inch to the mile, and is representative of the latest and most careful topographic work of the Geological Survey. Its scale is such that all the roads and trails of the region are represented, and even the locations of the dwellings of the country districts appear. The principal settlements shown on the sheet are Cuba, Leashurg, Eurbon, Suilivan and Union. All the boundaries of the Land-Office surveys also appear.

One of the most interesting features of the map is the striking manner in which it reveals the marked inequalities of relief which characterize the region, produced by the erostve action of a highly developed and complicated system of surface drainage. These are brought out by the use of contour lines, or lines drawn through points of equal elevation at intervals of fifty feet. The map is one of about forty which have been issued of different portions of the State, and it will be followed by others until the entire State is mapped.
